24. In November, voters will be asked whether they support a ballot question that would eliminate party primaries and replace them with a so-called "top two" system, in which the top two vote-getters, regardless of party affiliation, would advance to the general election. If the election were today, would you vote for this ballot question – yes or no?

24. In November, voters will be asked whether they support a ballot question that would eliminate party primaries and replace them with a so-called "top two" system, in which the top two vote-getters, regardless of party affiliation, would advance to the general election. If the election were today, would you vote for this ballot question – yes or no?

24. In November, voters will be asked whether they support a ballot question that would eliminate party primaries and replace them with a so-called "top two" system, in which the top two vote-getters, regardless of party affiliation, would advance to the general election. If the election were today, would you vote for this ballot question – yes or no?

24. In November, voters will be asked whether they support a ballot question that would eliminate party primaries and replace them with a so-called "top two" system, in which the top two vote-getters, regardless of party affiliation, would advance to the general election. If the election were today, would you vote for this ballot question – yes or no?
