

INTEGRATED MASTER'S PROGRAM GOALS

Through INTO Suffolk's Integrated Master's Program, students will...

- learn to conform with daily graduate school performance expectations
- be understood with minimal effort by faculty and students with little or no experience with non-native speakers
- build skills and confidence in public speaking
- learn to advocate for a position or opinion, supported by credible authority
- understand classroom discussion and discourse
- understand university-level academic lectures
- learn to be an effective, fully participating member of an academic team and study group
- learn to accurately convey in writing a summary of the facts, the supporting analysis, and his/her conclusions
- learn to adhere to format and purpose guidelines of various correspondence and assignments
- learn to identify and organize key points and their supporting sub-points by outlining prior to writing
- understand the concept and consequences of plagiarism and adhere to standards of academic integrity
- learn to conduct scholarly research and write papers with proper citations and references
- learn to use multimedia platforms to attract and hold an audience's attention
- learn to develop professional credentials for job search purposes
- demonstrate and uphold the highest integrity and honesty in all academic work