A Word to Our Graduates

Westlaw and Lexis Summer Use Policy for Students

Westlaw

You can use Thomson Reuters products, including Westlaw®, Practical Law, and the Practice Ready solutions over the summer for non-commercial research. You can turn to these resources to gain understanding and build confidence in your research skills, but you cannot use them in situations where the work you are doing is related to a paying client.

Examples of permissible uses for your academic password include the following:

- Summer coursework
- Research assistant assignments
- Law Review or Journal research
- Moot Court research
- Non-Profit work
- Clinical work
- Externship sponsored by the school

You do not have to do anything to gain access to these tools over the summer.

Lexis+

Once again, Lexis is providing full access to Lexis+® through student law school IDs throughout the months of June, July and August. Continued access includes tools, search history and the same exclusive content and practical guidance . Whether clerking, interning or working at a firm, students can use their law school access. (Note that some employers may prefer that summer associate use a firm provided ID for client work.)

Prepare to Practice

There's still time for students to complete the popular LexisNexis Prepare to Practice program that helps students succeed in summer and permanent employment. On-demand activities focus on the practical skills that summer associates and new associates identified as critical to their success. A new module added to the program covers legal analytics.

Her honor : stories of challenge and triumph from women judges / Lauren Stiller Rikleen, editor ; foreword by Dahlia Lithwick

"Her Honor is a magnificent anthology of the professional and personal reflections of some of the country's leading women jurists. The chapters in this volume bring to life the challenges, the pain, the joys, and the resiliency of female judges representing three generations of judicial icons.
